Traditional vs online marketing

ASPECT	TRADITIONAL MARKETING	ONLINE MARKETING
Medium	Utilizes offline channels (TV, radio, print, billboards).	Utilizes digital channels (websites, social media, email, search engines).
Targeting	Less precise targeting; relies on demographics and geographic location.	Highly targeted; uses data analytics to segment audiences based on behavior, interests, and demographics.
Cost	Generally higher costs due to production and placement (e.g., TV ads, print materials).	Often more cost-effective; flexible budgeting options (e.g., pay-per-click, social media ads).
Measurement	Difficult to measure effectiveness; relies on indirect metrics (e.g., surveys, sales increases).	Easy to track and analyze performance in real-time (e.g., click-through rates, conversion rates).
Engagement	Primarily one-way communication; limited interaction with the audience.	Two-way communication; encourages interaction through comments, shares, and direct messages.
Speed of Execution	Slower to implement; requires longer lead times for production and distribution.	Quick to launch and adjust campaigns; real-time updates and changes are possible.
Audience Reach	Can reach a broad audience; may not be as effective for niche markets.	Can reach global audiences and specific niche markets effectively.
Customer Relationship	Limited ability to build relationships; often transactional.	Facilitates relationship building through personalized communication and engagement.
Adaptability	Less adaptable to changes in market conditions; requires significant effort to pivot.	Highly adaptable; can quickly respond to trends, feedback, and market changes.
