

WooCommerce Order Simulation & Management Report

Student Name: Enis Ögdüm

Date: November 28, 2025

Introduction

This report documents the completion of a two-stage task involving the simulation of customer orders and subsequent order management within a WooCommerce installation. The first stage involved creating orders from the customer's perspective, while the second stage focused on managing these orders from the administrator's perspective.

Status: All tasks for Stage 1 and Stage 2 have been successfully completed and are documented below.

Part 1: Order Placement (Completed)

Conclusion

This project successfully demonstrates the end-to-end testing of an e-commerce platform's core functionalities using WooCommerce. All objectives outlined in the initial brief have been met and verified through comprehensive documentation.

The following key deliverables were achieved:

1. Order Simulation: A total of five customer orders were successfully simulated, each containing a minimum of two items. These orders originated from three distinct customers located in different geographical regions (Poland, Germany, and the United States), thereby validating the configured shipping zones.
2. Payment and Registration: The Cash-on-Delivery (COD) payment method was utilized for all transactions, and temporary email services were effectively employed for efficient customer account creation.
3. Administrative Verification: The order management panel was used to verify that all order information was accurately captured and is correctly displayed to the operator.
4. Order Management: Two additional orders were manually created through the administrative interface, confirming the operator's ability to initiate orders on behalf of customers.
5. Order Lifecycle Management: The status of existing orders was systematically modified (e.g., to Processing, Completed, Failed, Refunded, and Canceled) to simulate the complete order fulfillment lifecycle.
6. Order Editing: Detailed order information, including billing addresses and product line items, was accessed and modified, demonstrating comprehensive data management capabilities.
7. System Validation: The WooCommerce installation was rigorously tested, confirming its full operational capacity for both customer-facing order placement and administrator-facing order management, including all essential editing and status update functions.
